Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

The teacher said, "Man is mortal".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The teacher said that man is mortal.

The teacher said that man will be mortal.

The teacher said man is mortal.

The teacher said that man was mortal.

The correct answer is:

The teacher said that man is mortal.

Explanation:

The original sentence "The teacher said, 'Man is mortal'" is in active voice. The speaker (the teacher) is performing the action of saying. To change it to passive voice, we need to make the focus on the receiver of the action (the statement "Man is mortal"). However, in this case, the sentence is a quote, and the change to passive voice would not be grammatically correct.

But if we remove the quotation marks, the sentence "The teacher said that man is mortal" is still in active voice, with the teacher performing the action of saying. There is no change to passive voice.

The other options are incorrect because they change the tense of the sentence, which is not related to the change of voice from active to passive or vice versa.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

She said to me, "Where have you gone all these days???

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

She asked me where I had gone all those days.

She asked me where had I gone all these days.

She asked me where had I gone all those days.

She said to me where I had gone all these days.

The correct answer is:

She asked me where I had gone all those days.

Explanation:

The original sentence "She said to me, 'Where have you gone all these days?'" is in active voice, with the subject "She" performing the action of saying. To change it to passive voice, we need to make the focus on the receiver of the action (the person being asked).

In the correct answer, "She asked me" is still in active voice, but the sentence structure has changed to focus on the question being asked, making it a passive construction. The verb tense has also changed to match the passive construction.

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 2 and 3 have incorrect word order, with "had I" instead of "I had".
- Option 4 is incorrect because "She said to me" is still in active voice, and the sentence structure doesn't match the passive construction.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

She said to me, "Where have you gone all these days???

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

She asked me where I had gone all those days.

She asked me where had I gone all these days.

She asked me where had I gone all those days.

She said to me where I had gone all these days.

The correct answer is:

She asked me where I had gone all those days.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with "She" as the subject performing the action of saying. To change it to passive voice, we need to focus on the receiver of the action (the person being asked).

The correct answer changes the sentence to passive voice by:

- Changing "said" to "asked" (a more suitable verb for the context)
- Swapping the positions of "me" and "where I had gone" to focus on the question being asked
- Changing "these" to "those" to maintain grammatical correctness

The other options are incorrect because they either:

- Have incorrect word order (options 2 and 3)
- Don't change the focus from the doer (She) to the receiver (me) (option 4)

At this stage of civilisation, when many nations are brought in to close and vital contact for good and evil, it is essential, as never before, that their gross ignorance of one another should be diminished, that they should begin to understand a little of one another's historical experience and resulting mentality.

According to the author his countrymen should

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

have a better understanding of other nations

read the story of other nations

not react to other actions

have vital contacts with other nations

The correct answer is:

have a better understanding of other nations

Explanation:

The author emphasizes the importance of diminishing the "gross ignorance" of one another among nations and beginning to understand each other's historical experiences and resulting mentality. This suggests that the author wants their countrymen to gain a deeper understanding and appreciation of other nations, their cultures, and their perspectives.

The other options do not accurately capture the author's intent:

- Option 2, "read the story of other nations", is too narrow and literal, as the author is advocating for a broader understanding, not just reading about other nations.
- Option 3, "not react to other actions", is incorrect, as the author is encouraging engagement and understanding, not indifference.
- Option 4, "have vital contacts with other nations", is already mentioned in the passage as a given circumstance, rather than a desired outcome.

Select options correctly showing the change of speech in a given sentence - from direct to indirect or from indirect to direct.

The teacher said, "The Earth is a planet."

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The teacher said that the Earth will be a planet.

The teacher said the Earth is a planet.

The teacher said that the Earth was a planet.

The teacher said that the Earth is a planet.

The correct answer is:

The teacher said that the Earth is a planet.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, where the teacher's exact words are quoted: "The Earth is a planet".

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb tense to match the reporting verb "said" (in this case, no change is needed, as "is" remains the correct tense)
- Add the subordinating conjunction "that" to introduce the reported clause

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 changes the verb tense incorrectly, using "will be" instead of "is".
- Option 2 is still direct speech, without the necessary changes to convert it to indirect speech.
- Option 3 changes the verb tense incorrectly, using "was" instead of "is".

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

The teacher told my mother that I had got good marks.

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The teacher told to my mother, "your son got good marks.

The teacher said to my mother, "Your son gets good marks.

The teacher said to my mother, "Your son has got good marks.

None

The correct answer is:

None

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "The teacher" performing the action of telling.

To change it to passive voice, we would need to rephrase the sentence to focus on the receiver of the action (my mother), but none of the options do this correctly.

The options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 is incorrect because it changes the sentence structure and wording, but not to a passive voice construction.
- Option 2 is incorrect because it changes the verb tense and wording, but not to a passive voice construction.
- Option 3 is incorrect because it is still in active voice, with the same subject (The teacher) performing the action of saying.

A correct passive voice construction would be: "My mother was told by the teacher that I had got good marks."

Question 6

Report a problem

Please go ahead and ask your question, and I'll do my best to assist you. If you've encountered an issue or problem, describe it to me, and I'll try to help you resolve it or find a solution.

Select options correctly showing the change of speech in a given sentence - from direct to indirect or from indirect to direct.

My mother said to me, "Don't disturb me.??

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

My mother told me to disturb her.

My mother told me not to disturb me.

My mother told me not to disturb her.

My mother said that not to disturb me.

The correct answer is:

My mother told me not to disturb her.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, where the mother's exact words are quoted: "Don't disturb me".

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the pronoun "me" to "her", as the mother is referring to herself
- Add the verb "told" to introduce the reported clause

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 is incorrect because it changes the meaning of the sentence, using "disturb" instead of "not to disturb".
- Option 2 is incorrect because it retains the original pronoun "me", which should be changed to "her".

- Option 4 is incorrect because it uses the phrase "said that not to", which is grammatically incorrect.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

He said to me, "I shall show you the way now".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

He said that he should show me the way now.

He said to me that he should show me the way then.

He told me that he should show me the way then.

None

The correct answer is:

None

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "He" performing the action of saying and showing.

To change it to passive voice, we would need to rephrase the sentence to focus on the receiver of the action (me), but none of the options do this correctly.

The options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 changes the verb tense and wording, but not to a passive voice construction.
- Option 2 changes the verb tense and wording, and adds an incorrect adverb "then", but not to a passive voice construction.

- Option 3 is similar to option 2, with the same errors.

A correct passive voice construction would be: "I was told by him that I would be shown the way now."

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

He said to me, "You can never get my help".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

He told me that I can never get my help.

He told me that I could never get my help.

He told me that I could never get his help.

He told me that I can never get his help.

The correct answer is:

He told me that I could never get his help.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "He" performing the action of saying.

To change it to passive voice, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the pronoun "you" to "I", as the focus shifts to the receiver of the action (me)
- Change the verb tense to match the reporting verb "told" (from "can" to "could")
- Change the possessive pronoun "my" to "his", as the help belongs to the original speaker (he)

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 retains the original verb tense and possessive pronoun.
- Option 2 retains the original possessive pronoun.
- Option 4 retains the original verb tense.

Select options correctly showing the change of speech in a given sentence - from direct to indirect or from indirect to direct.

The boy said, "I have pain in my right leg".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The boy said that I have pain in my right leg.

The boy said that he had pain in his right leg.

The boy said he had pain in his right leg.

The boy said that he has pain in his right leg.

The correct answer is:

The boy said that he had pain in his right leg.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, where the boy's exact words are quoted: "I have pain in my right leg".

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the pronoun "I" to "he", as the boy is referring to himself in the third person

- Change the verb tense to match the reporting verb "said" (from "have" to "had")
- Change the possessive pronoun "my" to "his", as the leg belongs to the boy

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 retains the original pronoun "I", which should be changed to "he".
- Option 3 is missing the conjunction "that", which is necessary for indirect speech.
- Option 4 retains the original verb tense "has", which should be changed to "had" to match the reporting verb "said".

Select the correct active/passive form of the given sentence.

She handles all tasks efficiently.

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

All tasks are being handled efficiently by her.

All tasks were handled efficiently by her.

All tasks have been handled efficiently by her.

All tasks are handled efficiently by her.

The correct answer is:

All tasks are handled efficiently by her.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "She" performing the action of handling tasks.

To change it to passive voice, we need to:

- Make the object "all tasks" the subject of the sentence
- Use the verb "are handled" to describe the action
- Add the phrase "by her" to indicate who is performing the action

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the present continuous tense "are being handled", which changes the meaning of the sentence.
- Option 2 uses the past simple tense "were handled", which changes the meaning of the sentence.
- Option 3 uses the present perfect tense "have been handled", which changes the meaning of the sentence.

Note that option 4 is the correct passive voice construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Our genuine goodwill and good intentions are often brought to nothing, because we expect other people to be like us. This would be corrected if we knew the history, not necessarily in detail but in broad outlines, of the social and political conditions which have given to each nation its present character.

The character of a nation is the result of its

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

socio-political conditions

mentality

gross ignorance

cultural heritage

The correct answer is:

socio-political conditions

Explanation:

The passage states that the character of a nation is shaped by its "social and political conditions", which suggests that a nation's character is the result of its socio-political context. This includes factors such as its history, governance, economy, and social structures.

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 2, "mentality", is too narrow and refers to a nation's collective mindset or attitude, rather than the broader socio-political context.
- Option 3, "gross ignorance", is actually mentioned in the passage as something that should be diminished, rather than a factor that shapes a nation's character.
- Option 4, "cultural heritage", is a related but distinct concept that refers to a nation's cultural traditions, customs, and values, rather than the socio-political conditions that shape its character.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

The teacher said, "The Earth is a planet."

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The teacher said the Earth is a planet.

The teacher said that the Earth was a planet.

The teacher said that the Earth will be a planet.

The teacher said that the Earth was a planet.

The correct answer is:

None

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "The teacher" performing the action of saying.

To change it to passive voice, we would need to rephrase the sentence to focus on the receiver of the action (the Earth), but none of the options do this correctly.

The options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 is still in active voice, without any changes.
- Option 2 changes the verb tense to past simple, but not to passive voice.
- Option 3 changes the verb tense to future simple, but not to passive voice.
- Option 4 is the same as option 2, with the same error.

A correct passive voice construction would be: "It was said by the teacher that the Earth is a planet."

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

She asked the child, "Have you taken your meal?"

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

She asked the child if he/she would take his/her meal.

She asked the child if he/she had taken his/her meal.

She asked the child if he/she has taken his/her meal.

She asked the child if he/she will take his/her meal.

The correct answer is:

She asked the child if he/she had taken his/her meal.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "She" performing the action of asking.

To change it to indirect speech (not exactly passive voice, but a related concept), we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb tense to match the reporting verb "asked" (from "have" to "had")
- Change the pronoun "you" to "he/she", as the child is referred to in the third person
- Add the conjunction "if" to introduce the reported question

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 changes the verb tense to future simple, which is not correct.
- Option 3 retains the present perfect tense "has", which is not correct.
- Option 4 changes the verb tense to future simple, which is not correct.

Note that this change is not strictly from active to passive voice, but rather from direct to indirect speech.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

He said to her, "Alas! He lost alt his property."

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

He exclaimed with sorrow that he has lost all his property.

He exclaimed with sorrow that he had lost all his property.

He told her that he lost all his property.

He exclaimed with sorrow that he lost all his property.

The correct answer is:

He exclaimed with sorrow that he had lost all his property.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "He" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech (not exactly passive voice, but a related concept), we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb tense to match the reporting verb "exclaimed" (from "lost" to "had lost")
- Add the conjunction "that" to introduce the reported clause
- Keep the phrase "with sorrow" to maintain the original emotional tone

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the present tense "has lost", which is not correct.
- Option 3 uses the simple past tense "lost", which is not correct.
- Option 4 lacks the conjunction "that" and uses the simple past tense "lost", which is not correct.

Note that this change is not strictly from active to passive voice, but rather from direct to indirect speech.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

The mother said, "My son ! Don't waste your time".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The mother advised her son not to waste his time.

None

The mother ordered her son not to waste his time.

The mother asked her son that not to waste his time.

The correct answer is:

The mother advised her son not to waste his time.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "The mother" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech (not exactly passive voice, but a related concept), we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the pronoun "my" to "her", as the mother is referring to her son in the third person
- Change the pronoun "your" to "his", as the son is referred to in the third person
- Use a suitable reporting verb like "advised" to convey the mother's intent

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 2 is incorrect because it doesn't provide a suitable alternative.
- Option 3 uses the verb "ordered", which changes the tone and meaning of the original sentence.
- Option 4 uses the phrase "asked that not to", which is grammatically incorrect.

Note that this change is not strictly from active to passive voice, but rather from direct to indirect speech.

Select the correct active/passive form of the given sentence.

The police beat a number of protestors last night.

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

A number of protestors had been beaten by the police last night.

A number of protestors were beaten by the police last night.

A number of protestors has been beaten by the police the night before.

A number of protestors were being beaten by the police last night.

The correct answer is:

A number of protestors were beaten by the police last night.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "The police" performing the action of beating.

To change it to passive voice, we need to:

- Make the object "a number of protestors" the subject of the sentence
- Use the verb "were beaten" to describe the action
- Add the phrase "by the police" to indicate who performed the action

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the present perfect tense "had been beaten", which changes the meaning of the sentence.

- Option 3 uses the present tense "has been beaten" and changes the time frame to "the night before", which is not correct.
- Option 4 uses the present continuous tense "were being beaten", which changes the meaning of the sentence.

Note that option 2 is the correct passive voice construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select options correctly showing the change of speech in a given sentence - from direct to indirect or from indirect to direct.

He said to my father, "I read the Hindu every day.

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

He told my father that he read the Hindu every day.

He told to my father that he read the Hindu every day.

He told my father that he reads the Hindu every day.

None.

Excellent question!

The correct answer is:

He told my father that he read the Hindu every day.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, where the exact words of the speaker are quoted: "I read the Hindu every day".

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the pronoun "I" to "he", as the speaker is referred to in the third person
- Use the verb "told" instead of "said to"
- Keep the same verb tense "read" to match the original sentence

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 2 uses the incorrect preposition "to" after "told".
- Option 3 changes the verb tense to "reads", which is not correct.

Note that option 1 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

At this stage of civilisation, when many nations are brought in to close and vital contact for good and evil, it is essential, as never before, that their gross ignorance of one another should be diminished, that they should begin to understand a little of one another's historical experience and resulting mentality.

The need for a greater understanding between nations

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

will always be there

is more today than ever before

is no longer there

was always there

The correct answer is:

is more today than ever before

Explanation:

The passage emphasizes the importance of reducing ignorance and increasing understanding between nations, especially in the current stage of civilization where nations are in close contact. The phrase "as never before" indicates that the need for understanding is greater now than it has ever been.

The correct answer, "is more today than ever before", accurately reflects this idea.

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1, "will always be there", implies a constant need, but doesn't convey the increased importance.
- Option 3, "is no longer there", contradicts the passage's message.
- Option 4, "was always there", doesn't convey the increased importance in the current stage of civilization.

At this stage of civilisation, when many nations are brought in to close and vital contact for good and evil, it is essential, as never before, that their gross ignorance of one another should be diminished, that they should begin to understand a little of one another's historical experience and resulting mentality.

According to the author of 'Mentality' of a nation is mainly product of its

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

international position

history

politics

present character

The correct answer is:

history

Explanation:

The passage states that nations should "begin to understand a little of one another's historical experience and resulting mentality". This suggests that a nation's mentality is shaped by its historical experience.

The author implies that a nation's mentality is mainly a product of its history, which includes its past events, experiences, and cultural developments.

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1, "international position", is not mentioned as a factor influencing mentality.
- Option 3, "politics", is not explicitly mentioned as a primary factor in shaping mentality.
- Option 4, "present character", is not mentioned as a cause of mentality, but rather as a result of historical experience.

Note that the passage emphasizes the importance of understanding a nation's historical experience to comprehend its mentality.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

My mother said to me, "Don't disturb me.??

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

My mother told me not to disturb her.

My mother told me not to disturb me.

My mother said that not to disturb me.

My mother told me to disturb her.

The correct answer is:

My mother told me not to disturb her.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "My mother" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech (not exactly passive voice, but a related concept), we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the pronoun "me" to "her", as the mother is referring to herself in the third person
- Use the verb "told" instead of "said to"
- Keep the same meaning and tone of the original sentence

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 2 uses the incorrect pronoun "me" instead of "her".
- Option 3 uses the incorrect phrase "said that not to", which is grammatically incorrect.
- Option 4 changes the meaning of the sentence to the opposite, "disturb her" instead of "don't disturb me".

Note that option 1 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

elect options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

The boy said, "I have pain in my right leg".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The boy said that I have pain in my right leg.

The boy said that he has pain in his right leg.

The boy said that he had pain in his right leg.

The boy said he had pain in his right leg.

The correct answer is:

The boy said that he has pain in his right leg.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "The boy" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the pronoun "I" to "he", as the boy is referred to in the third person
- Keep the same verb tense "has" to match the original sentence

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the incorrect pronoun "I" instead of "he".
- Option 3 changes the verb tense to "had", which is not correct.
- Option 4 lacks the conjunction "that", which is necessary for indirect speech.

Note that option 2 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

The officer said to the clerk, "File these papers immediately".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The officer ordered the clerk to file those papers immediately.

The officer said to the clerk to file these papers immediately.

The officer ordered to the clerk to file those papers immediately.

None

The correct answer is:

The officer ordered the clerk to file those papers immediately.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "The officer" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "ordered", which is a more suitable reporting verb for the command
- Change the pronoun "these" to "those", as the papers are referred to in the third person

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 2 is incorrect because it retains the direct speech structure with "said to".
- Option 3 is incorrect because it uses the incorrect preposition "to" after "ordered".
- Option 4 is incorrect because it doesn't provide a suitable alternative.

Note that option 1 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

The teacher said to the girl, "What is your name?"

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The teacher asked the girl what is her name.

The teacher said to the girl what her name is/was.

The teacher asked the girl what was her name.

The teacher asked the girl what her name was.

The correct answer is:

The teacher asked the girl what her name was.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "The teacher" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "asked", which is a more suitable reporting verb for the question
- Change the sentence structure to a reported question
- Change the verb tense to match the original sentence (in this case, "was" is correct)

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the incorrect verb tense "is" instead of "was".
- Option 2 is incorrect because it retains the direct speech structure with "said to" and uses an incorrect sentence structure.
- Option 3 uses the incorrect word order "what was her name" instead of "what her name was".

Note that option 4 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

They said to him, "We are leaving for Chennai tomorrow."

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

They told him that they will be leaving for Chennai the day after.

None

They said to him that they are leaving for Chennai the day after.

They told him that they were leaving for Chennai the next day.

The correct answer is:

They told him that they were leaving for Chennai the next day.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "They" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "told", which is a more suitable reporting verb
- Change the pronoun "we" to "they", as the subject is referred to in the third person
- Change the time expression "tomorrow" to "the next day", which is more suitable for indirect speech
- Change the verb tense to match the original sentence (in this case, "were leaving" is correct)

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the incorrect verb tense "will be leaving" instead of "were leaving".
- Option 2 is incorrect because it doesn't provide a suitable alternative.
- Option 3 uses the incorrect sentence structure and verb tense.

Note that option 4 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

She said to the boy, "Where did you learn classical music?"

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

She asked the boy where he learnt classical music.

She asked the boy where he had learnt classical music.

She asked the boy where he learns classical music.

She asked the boy where he would learn classical music.

The correct answer is:

She asked the boy where he had learnt classical music.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "She" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "asked", which is a more suitable reporting verb for the question
- Change the pronoun "you" to "he", as the boy is referred to in the third person
- Change the verb tense to match the original sentence (in this case, "had learnt" is correct, indicating past perfect tense)

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the incorrect verb tense "learnt" instead of "had learnt".
- Option 3 uses the incorrect verb tense "learns" (present simple), which changes the meaning of the sentence.
- Option 4 uses the incorrect verb tense "would learn" (conditional), which changes the meaning of the sentence.

Note that option 2 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

She says to me, "We are going out."

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

She tells that they are going out.

She said that they were going out.

She tells that they were going out.

She said that they are going out.

The correct answer is:

She tells me that they are going out.

(However, this option is not available, so I'll choose the closest one)

She said that they are going out.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "She" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "says" to "tells" or "said", which are suitable reporting verbs
- Change the pronoun "we" to "they", as the subject is referred to in the third person
- Keep the same verb tense "are going" to match the original sentence

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the incorrect phrase "tells that" instead of "tells me that".
- Option 2 changes the verb tense to "were going", which is not correct.
- Option 3 uses the incorrect verb tense "were going" and the phrase "tells that" instead of "tells me that".

Note that the correct sentence should be "She tells me that they are going out", but it's not available among the options.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

He said to my father, "I read the Hindu every day.

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

None

He told to my father that he read the Hindu every day

He told my father that he reads the Hindu every day.

He told my father that he read the Hindu every day.

The correct answer is:

He told my father that he read the Hindu every day.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "He" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "told", which is a more suitable reporting verb
- Change the pronoun "I" to "he", as the subject is referred to in the third person
- Keep the same verb tense "read" to match the original sentence

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 is incorrect because it doesn't provide a suitable alternative.
- Option 2 uses the incorrect preposition "to" after "told".
- Option 3 changes the verb tense to "reads" (present simple), which changes the meaning of the sentence.

Note that option 4 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

Vamsi said, "We are playing a match today".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

Vamsi said that they were playing a match today.

Vamsi said that they have been playing a match that day.

Vamsi said that they were playing a match that day.

Vamsi said that they are playing a match today.

The correct answer is:

Vamsi said that they are playing a match today.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "Vamsi" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to remain the same, as it's already in the correct form
- Change the pronoun "we" to "they", as the subject is referred to in the third person
- Keep the same verb tense "are playing" to match the original sentence

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 changes the verb tense to "were playing" (past continuous), which changes the meaning of the sentence.
- Option 2 changes the verb tense to "have been playing" (present perfect continuous) and adds an incorrect phrase "that day", which changes the meaning of the sentence.
- Option 3 changes the verb tense to "were playing" (past continuous) and adds an incorrect phrase "that day", which changes the meaning of the sentence.

Note that option 4 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select the correct active/passive form of the given sentence.

Manu will tell her later.

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

She will be told later by Manu.

She will be tell later.

She will tell later by Manu.

She will be tell later by Manu

The correct answer is:

She will be told later by Manu.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "Manu" performing the action of telling.

To change it to passive voice, we need to:

- Change the subject to "She", who is the recipient of the action
- Change the verb "will tell" to "will be told", which is the passive form
- Add the phrase "by Manu" to indicate the doer of the action

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 2 and 4 use the incorrect verb form "will be tell" instead of "will be told".
- Option 3 uses the incorrect phrase "by Manu" without changing the verb to passive form.

Note that option 1 is the correct passive voice construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select the correct active/passive form of the given sentence.

Rahul is playing cricket in the playground provided by the government.

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

Cricket is been played by Rahul in the playground provided by the government

Cricket is being played by Rahul in the playground provided by the government.

Cricket has been played by Rahul in the playground provided by the government.

Cricket is played by Rahul in the playground provided by the government

The correct answer is:

Cricket is being played by Rahul in the playground provided by the government.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in active voice, with the subject "Rahul" performing the action of playing cricket.

To change it to passive voice, we need to:

- Change the subject to "Cricket", which is the recipient of the action
- Change the verb "is playing" to "is being played", which is the passive form
- Add the phrase "by Rahul" to indicate the doer of the action

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the incorrect verb form "is been played" instead of "is being played".
- Option 3 changes the verb tense to "has been played" (present perfect passive), which changes the meaning of the sentence.
- Option 4 uses the incorrect verb form "is played" (simple present passive) instead of "is being played" (present continuous passive).

Note that option 2 is the correct passive voice construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

She said to me, "May I come in. Sir?"

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

She ordered me to come in.

I said to her that she may come in.

I ordered her to come in.

She sought the permission from me to come in.

The correct answer is:

She sought permission from me to come in.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "She" performing the action of asking permission.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "sought permission", which is a more suitable reporting verb for the request
- Change the sentence structure to a reported request

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 changes the meaning of the sentence to an order, rather than a request.
- Option 2 changes the subject and the meaning of the sentence.

- Option 3 changes the subject and the meaning of the sentence to an order, rather than a request.

Note that option 4 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

However, if you want to change the voice from active to passive, the correct answer would be:

Permission was sought from me by her to come in.

This changes the focus from the doer (She) to the action (Permission was sought).

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

He said, "Children go to school every day".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

He said children go to school every day.

He said that children go to school that day.

He said that children go to school every day.

None

When changing the sentence from active to passive, the correct answer is:

It was said by him that children go to school every day.

However, this option is not available.

Among the available options, the closest one is:

He said that children go to school every day.

This option changes the direct speech to indirect speech, but it doesn't change the voice from active to passive.

If you want to change the voice from active to passive, you would need to rephrase the sentence, for example:

It is said that children go to school every day.

Or:

Children going to school every day was stated by him.

Note that changing the voice from active to passive can sometimes result in a less natural-sounding sentence, and may require rephrasing to sound more natural.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

He said to her, "Did you plan to go away in summer?"

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

He asked her if she has planned to go away in summer.

He asked her if she planned to go away in summer.

He asked her if she had planned to go away in summer.

He asked her if she would plan to go away in summer.

The correct answer is:

He asked her if she had planned to go away in summer.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "He" performing the action of asking.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "asked", which is a more suitable reporting verb for the question
- Change the sentence structure to a reported question
- Change the verb tense to match the original sentence (in this case, "had planned" is correct, indicating past perfect tense)

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the incorrect verb tense "has planned" (present perfect) instead of "had planned" (past perfect).
- Option 2 uses the incorrect verb tense "planned" (simple past) instead of "had planned" (past perfect).
- Option 4 uses the incorrect verb tense "would plan" (conditional) instead of "had planned" (past perfect).

Note that option 3 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

elect options correctly showing the change of speech in a given sentence - from direct to indirect or from indirect to direct.

They said to him, "We are leaving for Chennai tomorrow."

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

They told him that they will be leaving for Chennai the day after.

They told him that they were leaving for Chennai the next day.

None

They said to him that they are leaving for Chennai the day after.

The correct answer is:

They told him that they were leaving for Chennai the next day.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "They" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "told", which is a more suitable reporting verb
- Change the pronoun "we" to "they", as the subject is referred to in the third person
- Change the time expression "tomorrow" to "the next day", which is more suitable for indirect speech
- Change the verb tense to match the original sentence (in this case, "were leaving" is correct, indicating past continuous tense)

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the incorrect verb tense "will be leaving" (future continuous) instead of "were leaving" (past continuous).
- Option 3 is incorrect because it doesn't change the direct speech to indirect speech.
- Option 4 is incorrect because it doesn't change the verb tense to match the original sentence.

Note that option 2 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select the correct active/passive form of the given sentence.

Has the villa been occupied by them?

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

Have they occupied the villa?

Did they occupied the villa?

Do they occupied the villa?

Had they occupied the villa?

The correct answer is:

Have they occupied the villa?

Explanation:

The original sentence is in passive voice, with the subject "villa" receiving the action of being occupied.

To change it to active voice, we need to:

- Change the subject to "they", who are performing the action of occupying
- Change the verb "has been occupied" to "have occupied", which is the active form

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 2 uses the incorrect verb tense "did occupied" (past simple) instead of "have occupied" (present perfect).
- Option 3 uses the incorrect verb tense "do occupied" (present simple) instead of "have occupied" (present perfect).
- Option 4 uses the incorrect verb tense "had occupied" (past perfect) instead of "have occupied" (present perfect).

Note that option 1 is the correct active voice construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

It is the fault of the English to expect the people of other countries to react as they do, to political and international situations. Our genuine goodwill and good intentions are often brought to nothing, because we expect other people to be like us.

Englishmen like others to react to political situations like

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

others

us

each others

themselves

The correct answer is:

us

Explanation:

The original sentence states that English people expect others to react to political situations "as they do", implying that they expect others to react in the same way as themselves.

The sentence can be rephrased as:

"Englishmen like others to react to political situations like us"

This means that Englishmen expect others to react in the same way as they (Englishmen) do.

The other options are incorrect because:

- "others" is too general and doesn't convey the intended meaning
- "each others" is incorrect because it implies mutual reaction between people, rather than reaction similar to Englishmen

- "themselves" is incorrect because it implies that Englishmen expect others to react according to their own (others') nature, rather than according to Englishmen's nature.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

The boy said to her, "Don't wait for the bus".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The boy said to her that not to wait for the bus.

The boy said to her not to wait for the bus.

The boy said to her to wait for the bus.

The boy told her not to wait for the bus.

The correct answer is:

The boy told her not to wait for the bus.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "The boy" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "told", which is a more suitable reporting verb for the command
- Change the sentence structure to a reported command

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses incorrect grammar and wording ("that not to wait" instead of "not to wait")
- Option 2 is close, but uses "said" instead of "told", which is less suitable for a command
- Option 3 changes the meaning of the sentence to the opposite (wait for the bus instead of don't wait)

Note that option 4 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

The boy said to the Principal, "Why can't it be correct?"

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

The boy asked the Principal why it could not be correct.

The boy asked the principal that why it could not be correct.

The boy asked the principal why could not it be correct.

None

The correct answer is:

The boy asked the Principal why it could not be correct.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "The boy" performing the action of asking.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "asked", which is a more suitable reporting verb for the question
- Change the sentence structure to a reported question
- Change the verb tense to match the original sentence (in this case, "could not" is correct, indicating past ability)

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 2 uses incorrect grammar and wording ("that why" instead of "why")
- Option 3 uses incorrect word order ("why could not it" instead of "why it could not")
- Option 4 is incorrect because none of the other options are correct, but option 1 is a correct indirect speech construction.

Note that option 1 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

Select options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

He said to Sheela, "you have committed a mistake here".

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

He told Sheela that she had committed a mistake there.

None

He told Sheela that she committed a mistake here.

He told Sheela that she would commit a mistake there.

The correct answer is:

He told Sheela that she had committed a mistake here.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "He" performing the action of saying.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "told", which is a more suitable reporting verb for the statement
- Change the sentence structure to a reported statement
- Change the pronoun "you" to "she", as the subject is referred to in the third person
- Keep the verb tense the same ("had committed" is correct, indicating past perfect)

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 changes the adverb "here" to "there", which alters the meaning
- Option 2 is incorrect because none of the other options are correct, but option 3 is a correct indirect speech construction
- Option 4 changes the verb tense to future ("would commit" instead of "had committed"), which alters the meaning

Note that option 3 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.

elect options correctly showing the change of voice in each given sentence; from active to passive or from passive to active.

I said to him, "Can you lend me some money?"

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

I asked him if he shall lend me some money.

I asked him if he will lend me some money.

I asked him if he could lend me some money.

I asked him if he can lend me some money.

The correct answer is:

I asked him if he could lend me some money.

Explanation:

The original sentence is in direct speech, with the subject "I" performing the action of asking.

To change it to indirect speech, we need to:

- Remove the quotation marks
- Change the verb "said" to "asked", which is a more suitable reporting verb for the question
- Change the sentence structure to a reported question
- Change the verb tense to match the original sentence (in this case, "could" is correct, indicating past ability)

The other options are incorrect because:

- Option 1 uses the incorrect verb tense "shall" (future ability) instead of "could" (past ability)
- Option 2 uses the incorrect verb tense "will" (future simple) instead of "could" (past ability)
- Option 4 uses the incorrect verb tense "can" (present ability) instead of "could" (past ability)

Note that option 3 is the correct indirect speech construction, which maintains the same meaning as the original sentence.