Answer

No Error

five

We are both we are and five

The correct answer is: No Error

The sentence "We are five" is grammatically correct and does not contain any errors. It is a simple sentence stating the number of people in a group.

- "We" is a subject pronoun, correctly used as the subject of the sentence.
- "are" is a linking verb, correctly used to connect the subject to the predicate.
- "five" is a predicate nominative, correctly used to rename or reidentify the subject.

Therefore, there is no error in the sentence.

Choose the correct tense.

Neither of the painting _____ sold.

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

was have been were are

The correct answer is: were

The subject of the sentence is "Neither of the paintings", which is a plural noun phrase. The verb "were" is the correct choice to agree with the plural subject in the present perfect tense.

The correct sentence would be: "Neither of the paintings were sold."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "was" is a singular verb and doesn't agree with the plural subject.
- "have been" is the present perfect tense, but it doesn't fit the context of the sentence, which is describing a completed action in the past.

- "are" is the present tense, but it doesn't fit the context of the sentence, which is describing a past action.

Answer

This water-tank was being built by my grandfather in 1950.

This water-tank has been built by my grandfather in 1950.

This water-tank was built by my grandfather in 1950.

My grandfather had been building this water-tank in 1950.

The correct answer is: This water-tank was built by my grandfather in 1950.

The original sentence is in the active voice, where the subject (My grandfather) performs the action (built). To convert it to the passive voice, we need to make the object (This water-tank) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb "was built" instead of "built".

The correct passive form is: "This water-tank was built by my grandfather in 1950."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "This water-tank was being built by my grandfather in 1950" is in the passive voice, but it implies that the action was ongoing, which doesn't match the original sentence.
- "This water-tank has been built by my grandfather in 1950" is incorrect because "has been built" implies a recent action, whereas the original sentence specifies a specific year (1950).

- "My grandfather had been building this water-tank in 1950" is incorrect because it implies that the action was ongoing before 1950, whereas the original sentence states that the tank was built in 1950.

Answer

you forward to meet

I look

The correct answer is: to meet

The error is in the verb form. The correct sentence should be: "I look forward to meeting you."

The verb "look forward to" is followed by a gerund (a verb ending in "-ing"), not an infinitive verb ("to meet"). So, the correct form is "meeting", not "meet".

Here's the corrected sentence:

"I look forward to meeting you."

Select the correct active/passive form of the given sentence.

Give the child a nourishing diet.

Next

Answer

The child was given a nourishing diet.

The child must have given a nourishing diet.

The child should be given a nourishing diet.

The child is given a nourishing diet

The correct answer is: The child should be given a nourishing diet.

The original sentence is in the active voice, where the subject (implied, but not stated) is giving the diet to the child. To convert it to the passive voice, we need to make the object (The child) the subject of the sentence.

The correct passive form is: "The child should be given a nourishing diet."

This sentence is in the passive voice, where the focus is on the child receiving the diet, rather than who is giving it.

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "The child was given a nourishing diet" implies that the action is completed, whereas the original sentence is a recommendation or advice.
- "The child must have given a nourishing diet" is incorrect because it implies that the child is the one giving the diet, which is not the intended meaning.
- "The child is given a nourishing diet" implies that the action is a regular or habitual occurrence, whereas the original sentence is a recommendation or advice.

Spot the Error: I and my friend went to the party.

Answer

I and my friend went to the party

The correct answer is: I and my friend

The error is in the subject-verb order. In English, when using a conjunction like "and" to connect two subjects, the correct order is to put the other person first, followed by "and", and then "I".

The corrected sentence is: "My friend and I went to the party."

This is because the subject of the sentence is "My friend and I", and it's more polite and idiomatic to put the other person first.

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "went" is not the error, as it's the correct verb form.
- "to" is not the error, as it's the correct preposition.
- "the party" is not the error, as it's the correct object of the sentence.

The correct answer is: ACEBD

Here's the logical order of sentences to construct a coherent paragraph:

A. A famous Japanese rock garden is at Ryoan-Ji in Northwest Kyoto, Japan. (Introduction to the garden)

C. The garden is 30 meters long from East to West & 10 meters from north to south. (Description of the garden's size)

E. There are no trees, just 15 irregularly shaped rocks of varying sizes, some arranged by gravel/sand that is raked everyday. (Description of the garden's features)

B. The rocks of various sizes are arranged on small white pebbles in five groups, each comprising five, two, three, two, & three rocks. (Detailed description of the rock arrangement)

D. The garden contains 15 rocks arranged on the surface of white pebbles in such a manner that visitors can see only 14 of them at once from whichever angle the garden is viewed. (Interesting fact about the garden's design)

This order makes sense because it introduces the garden, describes its size and features, and then provides more detailed information about the rock arrangement and design.

Answer

He has not only been fined by the school but has also expelled for misbehavior.

He will not only be fined by the school but will also be expelled for misbehavior.

He is not only fined by the school but also expelled for misbehavior.

He was not only fined by the school but also expelled for misbehavior.

The correct answer is: He was not only fined by the school but also expelled for misbehavior.

The original sentence is in the active voice, where the subject (The school) performs the actions (fined and expelled) on the object (him). To convert it to the passive voice, we need to make the object (him) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb forms "was fined" and "was expelled".

The correct passive form is: "He was not only fined by the school but also expelled for misbehavior."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "He has not only been fined... but has also expelled" is incorrect because "has expelled" should be "has been expelled" to maintain the passive voice.
- "He will not only be fined... but will also be expelled" changes the tense to future, whereas the original sentence is in the past tense.
- "He is not only fined... but also expelled" changes the tense to present, whereas the original sentence is in the past tense, and also "fined" should be "fined by the school" to maintain the passive voice.

Answer

A number of protestors were being beaten by the police last night.

A number of protestors were beaten by the police last night.

A number of protestors had been beaten by the police last night.

A number of protestors has been beaten by the police the night before.

The correct answer is: A number of protestors were beaten by the police last night.

The original sentence is in the active voice, where the subject (The police) performs the action (beat) on the object (a number of protestors). To convert it to the passive voice, we need to make the object (a number of protestors) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb form "were beaten".

The correct passive form is: "A number of protestors were beaten by the police last night."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "A number of protestors were being beaten..." implies that the action was ongoing, whereas the original sentence states that it happened last night.
- "A number of protestors had been beaten..." implies that the action occurred before another action in the past, which is not the case here.
- "A number of protestors has been beaten..." is incorrect because the subject-verb agreement is wrong (should be "were" instead of "has") and also changes the tense to present perfect, whereas the original sentence is in the past simple tense.

The correct answer is: Both the

The error is in the phrase "Both the girls". The correct phrase should be "Both girls" or "The two girls".

"Both" is a determiner that indicates that two things are involved, so it's unnecessary to use "the" before "girls". The corrected sentence is:

"Both girls helped one another"

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "No Error" is incorrect because there is an error in the sentence.
- "girls helped" is not the error, as it's the correct verb form.
- "one another" is not the error, as it's the correct phrase to use when referring to two people helping each other.

D. As the situation in Kenya escalated with murders, rapes, burning of property, looting, and the displacement of thousands of people throughout the country - the international community was urged to help. (Description of the escalating situation and the call for help)

E. Many countries responded, providing essential humanitarian assistance and logistical support. For this, I and many other Kenyans are very grateful. (Description of the international response and expression of gratitude)

This order makes sense because it introduces the crisis, describes its impact, explains the escalating situation, and then describes the response and gratitude.

What do tenses as the form of a verb help to determine?

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

Both time and state of action

The time of the action

The number of action

The state of the action

The correct answer is: Both time and state of action

Tenses, as the form of a verb, help to determine:

1. Time: When the action takes place (past, present, or future)
2. State of action: The stage or status of the action (e.g., completed, ongoing, started, or finished)

In other words, verb tenses indicate:

- When the action occurs (time)
- What is happening with the action (state of action)

For example:

- "I am writing" (present tense, ongoing action)
- "I wrote" (past tense, completed action)
- "I will write" (future tense, planned action)

The other options are incorrect because:

- "The time of the action" is only half of what tenses determine.
- "The number of action" is not related to verb tenses.
- "The state of the action" is only half of what tenses determine.

Select the correct active/passive form of the given sentence.

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

You might have done the job.

You may be doing the job.

You might do the job.

You may do the job.

The correct answer is: You may do the job.

The original sentence is in the passive voice, where the subject (the job) receives the action (may be done) performed by the agent (you). To convert it to the active voice, we need to make the agent (you) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb form "may do".

The correct active form is: "You may do the job."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "You might have done the job" is incorrect because it changes the tense to past perfect and adds a sense of uncertainty.
- "You may be doing the job" is incorrect because it changes the tense to present continuous.
- "You might do the job" is incorrect because it changes the degree of possibility from "may" to "might".

Choose the correct tense.

The wise leader and politician _____ assassinated.

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

have been

have had been

are has been

The correct answer is: has been

The correct sentence is: "The wise leader and politician has been assassinated."

The verb "has been" is in the present perfect tense, which is used to describe an action that occurred in the past and has a connection to the present. In this case, the assassination is a completed action that has a lasting impact on the present.

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "have been" is incorrect because it's a plural verb form, but the subject is singular ("leader and politician" is a single entity).
- "have had been" is incorrect because it's a wrong verb form (it should be "has been" instead).
- "are" is incorrect because it's a present tense verb, but the action of assassination is completed in the past.

Note: The word "assassinated" should be "assassinated" (correct spelling is "assassinated", but the correct word is "assassinated" or simply "killed").

Spot the Error: I wish I was there.

Answer

I wish

was

The correct answer is: was

The error is in the verb form "was". The correct sentence should use the verb form "were" instead of "was", because it's a subjunctive mood expressing a hypothetical or uncertain situation.

The corrected sentence is: "I wish I were there."

Here's why:

- "I wish" introduces a hypothetical or uncertain situation, which requires the subjunctive mood.
- "were" is the correct subjunctive form of the verb "to be" in this context, instead of "was" (which is the indicative form).

The other options are not the error:

- "I wish" is the correct phrase to introduce the hypothetical situation.
- "I" is the correct subject pronoun.
- "there" is the correct adverb indicating the location.

Here's the logical order of sentences to construct a coherent paragraph:

C. Cricket has been an extremely popular game in India for quite some time now. (Introduction to the popularity of cricket in India)

B. During the British period also, cricket remained popular in India. (Historical context of cricket's popularity)

E. However, due to this reason, other games/sports did not receive the required attention they deserve. (Consequence of cricket's popularity on other sports)

A. Thus, despite India's huge population, we have not done well in Olympic Games. (Result of the lack of attention to other sports)

D. It is time our government and corporate fraternity pay due attention to other games/sports and we redeem our national pride in Olympic Games. (Call to action to improve the situation)

This order makes sense because it introduces the popularity of cricket, provides historical context, explains the consequence of this popularity, states the result, and finally calls for action to improve the situation.

Answer

The farmer's wife will be collecting a fresh batch of eggs,

The farmer's wife collected a fresh batch of eggs.

The farmer's wife had collected a fresh batch of eggs.

The farmer's wife was collecting fresh batch of eggs.

The correct answer is: The farmer's wife collected a fresh batch of eggs.

The original sentence is in the passive voice, where the subject (a fresh batch of eggs) receives the action (was collected) performed by the agent (the farmer's wife). To convert it to the active voice, we need to make the agent (the farmer's wife) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb form "collected".

The correct active form is: "The farmer's wife collected a fresh batch of eggs."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "The farmer's wife will be collecting a fresh batch of eggs" is incorrect because it changes the tense to future continuous.
- "The farmer's wife had collected a fresh batch of eggs" is incorrect because it changes the tense to past perfect.
- "The farmer's wife was collecting fresh batch of eggs" is incorrect because it changes the tense to past continuous.

Note: The original sentence is in the past simple tense, so the correct active form should also be in the past simple tense.

Answer

The parents as well as the child have been invited.

The parents as well as the child had been invited by them.

The child as well as the parents has been invited.

The parents as well as the child has been invited.

The correct answer is: The parents as well as the child have been invited.

The original sentence is in the active voice, where the subject (They) performs the action (have invited) on the object (the parents as well as the child). To convert it to the passive voice, we need to make the object (the parents as well as the child) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb form "have been invited".

The correct passive form is: "The parents as well as the child have been invited."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "The parents as well as the child had been invited by them" is incorrect because it changes the tense to past perfect and adds an unnecessary agent ("by them").
- "The child as well as the parents has been invited" is incorrect because it changes the subject-verb agreement (should be "have" instead of "has").
- "The parents as well as the child has been invited" is incorrect because it also changes the subject-verb agreement (should be "have" instead of "has").

Note: The original sentence is in the present perfect tense, so the correct passive form should also be in the present perfect tense.

The error is in the phrase "explain me the grammar". The correct phrase should be "explain the grammar to me".

In English, the verb "explain" takes an indirect object (the person being explained to) after the direct object (the thing being explained). So, the correct sentence should be:

"Can you explain the grammar to me?"

The other options are not the error:

- "Can you" is a correct phrase to start a question.
- "explain" is a correct verb to use in this context.
- Both "can you" and "explain" are not the error, it's the phrase "explain me" that is incorrect.

She will be told later by Manu.

She will be tell later by Manu

The correct answer is: She will be told later by Manu.

The original sentence is in the active voice, where the subject (Manu) performs the action (will tell) on the object (her). To convert it to the passive voice, we need to make the object (her) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb form "will be told" along with the agent (by Manu).

The correct passive form is: "She will be told later by Manu."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "She will be tell later" is incorrect because it's a wrong verb form (should be "told" instead of "tell").
- "She will tell later by Manu" is incorrect because it's still in the active voice and has an unnecessary agent ("by Manu").
- "She will be tell later by Manu" is incorrect because it's a wrong verb form (should be "told" instead of "tell").

Note: The original sentence is in the future simple tense, so the correct passive form should also be in the future simple tense.

"In detail" is an idiomatic expression that means "with all the details" or "thoroughly", whereas "in details" is not a common expression in English.

The corrected sentence is:

The other options are not the error:

- "I told him" is a correct phrase to start the sentence.
- "the story" is the correct object of the sentence.
- "to make him understand it fully" is a correct phrase to explain the purpose of telling the story.

Which tense is used to show the completion of an action by a certain time in the future?

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

Future continuous tense

Future perfect continuous tense

Present indefinite tense

Future perfect tense

The correct answer is: Future perfect tense

The Future Perfect tense is used to describe an action that will be completed by a specific point in the future. It is formed using "will have" + the past participle of the verb.

Example: "I will have finished my project by next week."

This tense shows that the action of finishing the project will be completed by next week.

The other options are not correct:

- Future continuous tense (e.g. "I will be working") shows an action that will be in progress at a specific point in the future.
- Future perfect continuous tense (e.g. "I will have been working") shows an action that will be in progress for a period of time leading up to a specific point in the future.
- Present indefinite tense (e.g. "I finish") is used to describe habits or general truths, not future actions.

Cricket is being played by Rahul in the playground provided by the government.

Cricket is played by Rahul in the playground provided by the government

The correct answer is: Cricket is being played by Rahul in the playground provided by the government.

The original sentence is in the active voice, where the subject (Rahul) performs the action (is playing) on the object (cricket). To convert it to the passive voice, we need to make the object (cricket) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb form "is being played" along with the agent (by Rahul).

The correct passive form is: "Cricket is being played by Rahul in the playground provided by the government."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "Cricket is been played by Rahul..." is incorrect because it's a wrong verb form (should be "is being played" instead of "is been played").
- "Cricket has been played by Rahul..." is incorrect because it changes the tense to present perfect passive (implies the action is completed).
- "Cricket is played by Rahul..." is incorrect because it changes the tense to simple present passive (implies a general truth, not a specific action in progress).

Note: The original sentence is in the present continuous tense, so the correct passive form should also be in the present continuous tense.

Answer

The authority bid the migrant to leave the country.

The authority bade the migrant leave the country.

The authority bade the migrant to leave the country.

Let the migrant bade to leave the country.

The correct answer is: The authority bade the migrant to leave the country.

The original sentence is in the passive voice, where the subject (the migrant) receives the action (was bidden) performed by the agent (the authority). To convert it to the active voice, we need to make the agent (the authority) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb form "bade" (which is the correct past tense of the verb "bid").

The correct active form is: "The authority bade the migrant to leave the country."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "The authority bid the migrant to leave the country" is incorrect because it uses the wrong verb form (should be "bade" instead of "bid").
- "The authority bade the migrant leave the country" is incorrect because it changes the infinitive phrase to a base form (should be "to leave" instead of "leave").
- "Let the migrant bade to leave the country" is incorrect because it uses a wrong verb form and a wrong sentence structure (should be a declarative sentence instead of an imperative sentence).

Note: The verb "bid" is an irregular verb, and its past tense is "bade".

Flag

Previous

Answer

Everyone is laughing at the hunchback

Everyone laughed at the hunchback.

Everyone laughs at the hunchback

Everyone was laughing at the hunchback.

The correct answer is: Everyone was laughing at the hunchback.

The original sentence is in the passive voice, where the subject (the hunchback) receives the action (was being laughed at) performed by the agent (everyone). To convert it to the active voice, we need to make the agent (everyone) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb form "was laughing" (which is the correct past continuous tense).

The correct active form is: "Everyone was laughing at the hunchback."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "Everyone is laughing at the hunchback" is incorrect because it changes the tense to present continuous (implies the action is happening now).
- "Everyone laughed at the hunchback" is incorrect because it changes the tense to simple past (implies the action happened at a specific point in the past).
- "Everyone laughs at the hunchback" is incorrect because it changes the tense to simple present (implies a general truth, not a specific action in the past).

Note: The original sentence is in the past continuous passive tense, so the correct active form should also be in the past continuous tense.

The correct answer is: BCADE

Here's the logical order of sentences to construct a coherent paragraph:

B. It is said that Gautam Buddha gathered his disciples one day for a Dharma talk. (Introduction to the story)

C. The Buddha silently held up & twirled a flower and twinkled his eyes, several of his disciples tried to interpret what this meant though none of them was correct. (The Buddha's action)

A. When they gathered together, the Buddha was completely silent & some speculated that perhaps the Buddha was tired or ill. (This sentence is not necessary, but if included, it should come after B, as it describes the scene)

D. One of the Buddha’s disciples, Mahakasyapa, silently gazed at the flower & broke into a broad smile. (The reaction of one disciple)

E. The origin of Zen Buddhism is ascribed to the Flower Sermon, the earliest source which comes from the 14th century. (Conclusion, explaining the significance of the event)

This order makes sense because it:

1. Introduces the story (B)
2. Describes the Buddha's action (C)
3. Describes the scene (A, if included)
4. Shows the reaction of one disciple (D)
5. Explains the significance of the event (E)

Note: Sentence A could be omitted, as it's not essential to the story. If included, it should come after B, as it describes the scene.

Spot the Error: This girl wrote an essay so well that her teacher was exceedingly pleased with her

Answer

wrote an essay

This girl

so well that her teacher was exceedingly pleased with her

The correct answer is: This girl

The error is in the sentence structure. The phrase "This girl" is a vague and informal way to start a sentence. A more formal and clear way to start the sentence would be to use the girl's name or a more specific description.

The corrected sentence could be:

"This student wrote an essay so well that her teacher was exceedingly pleased with her."

Or:

"Sarah wrote an essay so well that her teacher was exceedingly pleased with her."

The other options are not the error:

- "wrote an essay" is a correct verb phrase.
- "so well that" is a correct conjunction introducing the consequence.
- "her teacher was exceedingly pleased with her" is a correct phrase describing the teacher's reaction.

Note: The original sentence is not grammatically incorrect, but it can be improved for clarity and formality.

Spot the Error: The boy with his friends buys chocolate at the supermarket.

Answer

The boy

at the supermarket

buys chocolate

with his friends

The correct answer is: buys chocolate

The error is in the sentence structure. The phrase "buys chocolate" should be in the present continuous tense to match the present continuous phrase "with his friends", indicating that the boy is buying chocolate while he is with his friends.

The corrected sentence could be:

"The boy is buying chocolate with his friends at the supermarket."

Alternatively, if you want to keep the simple present tense, you could rephrase the sentence to:

"The boy buys chocolate with his friends at the supermarket."

The other options are not the error:

- "The boy" is a correct subject.
- "at the supermarket" is a correct prepositional phrase indicating the location.
- "with his friends" is a correct prepositional phrase indicating the company.

Note: The original sentence is trying to convey a sense of action happening while the boy is with his friends, but the verb tense is not consistent.

Choose the correct tense.

They _____ into their cars and drove away.

Answer

got gets has got have got

The correct answer is: got

The sentence should read: "They got into their cars and drove away."

The verb "got" is in the simple past tense, which is correct because it describes a completed action in the past. The sentence describes a sequence of events: they got into their cars (first action) and then drove away (second action).

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "gets" is the simple present tense, which doesn't fit the context of a completed action in the past.
- "has got" is the present perfect tense, which describes an action that started in the past and continues up to the present, but doesn't fit the context of a completed action in the past.
- "have got" is also the present perfect tense, but with a plural subject, which doesn't fit the context of a completed action in the past.

Note: The simple past tense is the correct choice to describe a completed action in the past.

Select the correct active/passive form of the given sentence.

She handles all tasks efficiently.

Next

Answer

All tasks were handled efficiently by her.

All tasks have been handled efficiently by her.

All tasks are being handled efficiently by her.

All tasks are handled efficiently by her.

The correct answer is: All tasks are handled efficiently by her.

The original sentence is in the active voice, where the subject (She) performs the action (handles) on the object (all tasks). To convert it to the passive voice, we need to make the object (all tasks) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb form "are handled" (which is the correct present simple passive tense).

The correct passive form is: "All tasks are handled efficiently by her."

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "All tasks were handled efficiently by her" is incorrect because it changes the tense to past simple passive (implies the action is completed).
- "All tasks have been handled efficiently by her" is incorrect because it changes the tense to present perfect passive (implies the action started in the past and continues up to the present).
- "All tasks are being handled efficiently by her" is incorrect because it changes the tense to present continuous passive (implies the action is in progress).

Note: The original sentence is in the present simple tense, so the correct passive form should also be in the present simple tense.

Select the correct active/passive form of the given sentence.

Answer

Our Academy is providing one to one mentorship to the students.

Our students providing one to one mentorship to the Academy.

Our Academy has provided one to one mentorship to the students.

Our Academy provides one to one mentorship to the students.

The correct answer is: Our Academy provides one to one mentorship to the students.

The original sentence is already in the active voice, where the subject (Our Academy) performs the action (provides) on the object (one to one mentorship) for the indirect object (the students). The sentence is grammatically correct and clear.

However, if you want to convert it to the passive voice, the correct form would be:

"One to one mentorship is provided to the students by Our Academy."

This sentence is also grammatically correct, but it emphasizes the receiver of the action (the students) rather than the performer (Our Academy).

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "Our Academy is providing one to one mentorship to the students" is incorrect because it changes the tense to present continuous (implies the action is in progress).
- "Our students providing one to one mentorship to the Academy" is incorrect because it changes the subject to "Our students" (which is not the performer of the action) and also changes the direction of the action.

- "Our Academy has provided one to one mentorship to the students" is incorrect because it changes the tense to present perfect (implies the action started in the past and continues up to the present).

Note: The original sentence is in the present simple tense, so any changes should be carefully considered to maintain the intended meaning.

The correct answer is: CDAEB

Here's the logical order of sentences to construct a coherent paragraph:

C. The monsoon failed and water tanks became almost empty. (Introduction to the problem)

D. So, no grain could be sown by the farmers in their fields. (Consequence of the problem)

A. People started fearing a famine. (Result of the consequence)

E. Farmers looked anxiously for the next monsoon. (Reaction to the situation)

B. Monsoon turned out to be unusually abundant and the danger was averted. (Resolution of the situation)

This order makes sense because it:

1. Introduces the problem (C)
2. Explains the consequence of the problem (D)
3. Describes the result of the consequence (A)
4. Shows the reaction to the situation (E)
5. Resolves the situation (B)

This order creates a coherent narrative flow, making it easy to follow the story.

Select the correct active/passive form of the given sentence.

Has the villa been occupied by them?

Flag

Previous

Next

Answer

Did they occupied the villa?

Do they occupied the villa?

Had they occupied the villa?

Have they occupied the villa?

The correct answer is: Have they occupied the villa?

The original sentence is in the passive voice, where the subject (the villa) receives the action (has been occupied) performed by the agent (them). To convert it to the active voice, we need to make the agent (they) the subject of the sentence, and use the verb form "have occupied" (which is the correct present perfect tense).

The correct active form is: "Have they occupied the villa?"

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "Did they occupied the villa?" is incorrect because it uses the wrong verb form (should be "did they occupy" instead of "did they occupied").
- "Do they occupied the villa?" is incorrect because it uses the wrong verb form (should be "do they occupy" instead of "do they occupied").
- "Had they occupied the villa?" is incorrect because it changes the tense to past perfect (implies the action happened before another action in the past).

Note: The original sentence is in the present perfect passive tense, so the correct active form should also be in the present perfect tense.

Identify the tense used in the following sentence. “When I reached the bookstore, all the copies had already been sold.”

Previous

Next

Answer

Past perfect tense

Present indefinite tense

Present perfect tense

Past indefinite tense

The correct answer is: Past perfect tense

The sentence "When I reached the bookstore, all the copies had already been sold" uses the past perfect tense.

Here's why:

- "When I reached the bookstore" is in the past simple tense (describing a completed action in the past).
- "had already been sold" is in the past perfect tense (describing an action that occurred before another action in the past).

The past perfect tense is used to describe an action that happened before another action in the past. In this sentence, the selling of the copies happened before the speaker reached the bookstore.

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- Present indefinite tense is not used in this sentence, as it describes habits or general truths, not completed actions in the past.
- Present perfect tense is not used in this sentence, as it describes actions that started in the past and continue up to the present.
- Past indefinite tense is used in the first part of the sentence ("When I reached the bookstore"), but not in the second part, which uses the past perfect tense.

Here's the logical order of sentences to construct a coherent paragraph:

D. Most IT companies have been grappling with more mundane problems such as a high level of attrition amidst rising wage costs and inability to secure the right type and number of American visas. (Introduction to the challenges faced by IT companies)

E. The BPO industry and many medium-sized software exporters are reportedly operating on thin margins. (Additional information about the struggles of the industry)

C. Already one company, TCS, by resorting to these methods extensively has turned in an above-average performance during the first quarter. (Example of a company that has found success despite the challenges)

B. A greater recourse to hedging as well as striving for multi-currency revenue streams automatically suggests itself. (Suggested solution to the challenges)

A. The US market will continue to be the dominant one in the foreseeable future. The rupee could become even stronger. (Conclusion and future outlook)

This order makes sense because it:

1. Introduces the challenges faced by IT companies (D)
2. Provides additional context about the industry's struggles (E)
3. Offers an example of a successful company (C)
4. Suggests a solution to the challenges (B)
5. Concludes with a future outlook (A)

This order creates a coherent narrative flow, making it easy to follow the author's argument.

The correct answer is: ABCDE

Here's the logical order of sentences to construct a coherent paragraph:

A. Last March, I was invited to present a paper on the topic of whether the mistakes of the 20th century would be repeated in the 21st century as well. (Introduction to the author's past experience)

B. The economic crisis hadn't become grave then. (Context about the situation at that time)

C. But today the world is in the midst of the biggest economic crisis since 1929. (Contrast with the current situation)

D. The key difference between then and now is that the old power structures have finally disappeared. (Analysis of the current situation)

E. Now even the US is pleading for financial help from China. (Example of the shift in power dynamics)

This order makes sense because it:

1. Introduces the author's past experience (A)
2. Provides context about the situation at that time (B)
3. Contrasts with the current situation (C)
4. Analyzes the current situation (D)
5. Provides an example of the shift in power dynamics (E)

This order creates a coherent narrative flow, making it easy to follow the author's argument.

D. And natural resources how to share & care. (Continuation of the description)

E. However, they are introduced to students not as a paragraph to memorize but as an activity to do. (Explanation of the approach)

This order makes sense because it:

1. Introduces the organization's goal (A)
2. Introduces the new publication (B)
3. Describes the publication's content (C and D)
4. Explains the approach to teaching (E)

This order creates a coherent narrative flow, making it easy to follow the author's description of the publication and its purpose.

Read the passage and answer the below question accordingly.

Speech is great blessings but it can also be great curse, for while it helps us to make our intentions and desires known to our fellows, it can also if we use it carelessly, make our attitude completely misunderstood.

Speech can be curse, because it can

Next

Answer

create misunderstanding

lead to carelessness

reveal our intentions

hurt others

The correct answer is: create misunderstanding

The passage states that speech can be a curse "if we use it carelessly, make our attitude completely misunderstood." This suggests that the misuse of speech can lead to misunderstandings, which can have negative consequences.

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

- "Lead to carelessness" is not a direct consequence of speech, but rather a potential cause of misuse of speech.
- "Reveal our intentions" is actually a positive aspect of speech, as mentioned in the first part of the passage.
- "Hurt others" is a possible consequence of misuse of speech, but it's not the specific reason mentioned in the passage as to why speech can be a curse.
